

Our Three Commitments to You

A commitment between two people is a promise that builds trust. My team and I realize the importance of trust with our patients. We have three important commitments in my practice. I have placed them in writing, because I live by them, and so does my team.

Commitment to Treatment

With the most recent medical research, dental disease can now be linked to several serious medical conditions, therefore; I believe that all treatment begun should be completed. I will educate you to help in your understanding of the treatment needed, as well as addressing the treatment that you would want for yourself. I am committed to providing you with the best dental care that I am capable of delivering to you, and I ask that you care for your dental health on a daily basis to the best of your ability. Incomplete treatment leads to unnecessary problem and complications, such as pain and tooth loss. It may also lead to more advanced disease which could unnecessarily add to your cost and lead to a break down in the communication between the two of us. I understand that you want as little dentistry done in your lifetime, so following a carefully guided plan is key to you optimal dental health. Help yourself achieve that goal by following through with your plan.

Commitment to Financial Considerations

I have a responsibility to you to treat you with the best professional care my skill and judgement will provide to help you achieve your dental health goals. I, in turn, ask you to ask questions regarding your financial options in order for you to make the necessary arrangements and ask you to make firm financial arrangements to pay for your services.

Commitment to Appointment

I have a commitment to you to reserve the time needed for you in my schedule. I will always give you my utmost attention and will always try to keep you from waiting. An appointment scheduled in my office is a bond of trust that my team and I take very seriously to serve you, so I ask that you respect that trust and be on time and prepared for your appointment. I also ask that should you need to make a change to your reserved scheduled appointment that you make changes with a team member within two (2) business days. This will allow us to help schedule other patients that may require immediate attention. With the commitment, we can better serve you and our other valued patients.

Respectfully, Sasha Davisson DMD and the team of Callejo Dental

I have been informed and understand the commitments stated above.
